

Babe Paley

American socialite and style icon first married oil-heir Stanley Mortimer followed by wealthy café-society-outsider Paley, who was the builder of Columbia Broadcasting System (CBS). Babe, who was dying of cancer during the fallout from the 'book', never spoke to Truman again after Answered Prayers was published.

Lady 'Slim' Keith

American socialite and fashion icon was the former wife of both Hollywood director Howard Hawks, and then Broadway agent and producer, Leyland Hayward. Her third husband was British banker, Kenneth Keith.

Friendship ceased with publication of Answered Prayers. "I felt very bereft. I grieved...I never spoke to him after that."

Gloria Guinness

International socialite and fashion icon, as well as a contributing editor to Harper's Bazaar from 1963 until 1971.

C.Z. Guest

American stage actress, author, columnist, horsewoman, fashion designer and socialite. C.Z. remained a faithful friend until Truman's death. "What did all those silly women expect a writer was going to do? Of course he was going to use the material sooner or later."

Lee Radziwill

American socialite, public relations executive, interior decorator, former actress and sister of Jackie Kennedy remained a friend until Truman's addiction became too much. "He didn't understand that he was being treated like a toy (by those people). That was the part that destroyed him.....He stayed with us at our house for weeks....He was no longer the Truman I knew....The greatest way you can save somebody is by showing great love and support. I tried to do that, but maybe it was too late."

Marella Agnelli

Italian noblewoman, art collector, socialite, style icon and wife of Fiat chairman, Gianni Agnelli.

Marella discontinued her friendship with Truman before Answered Prayers was published:

"He told me one or two things to hurt me....there was something so vicious, so nasty that I got frightened of Truman".

Oona O'Neill

Debutante daughter of playwright Eugene O'Neill; school-mate of Carole Grace and Gloria Vanderbilt.
Child bride of Charlie Chaplin.

Carol Grace

American actress and author.
Twice married to Pulitzer Prize-winning writer
William Saroyan over an eight-year period.
Then married

Walter Matthau.
Reportedly the inspiration for Holly Golightly
character in the novella Breakfast at Tiffany's. She defended Capote long after other celebrity subjects turned against him.

Gloria Vanderbilt

American artist, author, actress, heiress and socialite, she married four times – including to conductor Leopold Stokowski, director Sydney
Lumet and author
Wyatt Cooper.
Cut off friendship with Truman after Answered Prayers.

