

Rehearsals for ‘Carol’

<https://gilroydispatch.com/rehearsals-for-carol/>

By: Gilroy Dispatch Staff

November 11, 2005

‘Inspecting Carol’ is an adult comedy featuring what can happen when people make assumptions. The play is set in the mid-west where a small and struggling theater company is rehearsing their annual Christmas Carol play. The company knows the National Endowment of the Arts will send an inspector out to ensure the players deserve federal funding. When a lousy actor tries out for the play, the cast believes it is the NEA inspector checking up on them. The real inspector appears at the worst possible the time. The 11-person cast is comprised of Morgan Hill, Gilroy and San Martin residents. The show will be performed at the Morgan Hill Playhouse at 8pm Nov. 18, 19, 25, 26 and Dec. 2, 3, 9 and 10. A 2pm matinee performance will be held on Nov. 27 and Dec. 4.

Tickets cost $15 for adults and $12 for students and seniors. They are available for purchase in advance at BookSmart in Morgan Hill and the Gilroy Visitor’s bureau.

Hewlitt talks about the failing theater companies performance

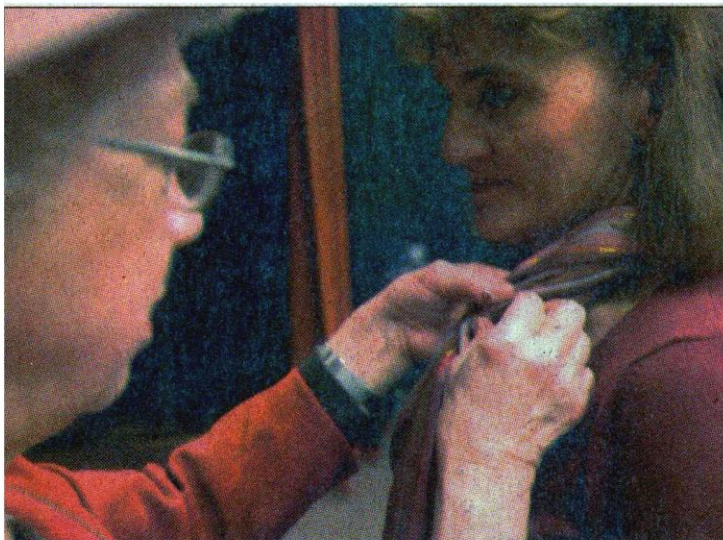

Photos by MARTIN JIMENEZ

Lance Leshelle, played by Phil Hewlitt, kisses the arm of aspiring director Zorah Bloch, played by Rosalind Farotte, who is trying to put together the play "A Christmas Carol" with the help of her stage manager, Laura Glasspool, played by M.J. McCann. The comedy, "Inspecting Carol," surrounds the production of the classic Christmas story. The production runs Nov. 25-27, Dec. 2-4 and 9-10 at the Morgan Hill Community Playhouse. For more info see www.svct.org.

"Inspecting Carol"

Carol Harris helps Rosalind Farotte with her costume before rehearsal at the Morgan Hill Community Playhouse Tuesday.

Director Kae Spencer inspects the crucial set piece of Scrooge's grave marker with light designer Danny Dunn Tuesday during rehearsal.